

THE YEAR OF SORROW

The boycott came to an end, but troubles never ended. Abu Talib was an old man, the starvation and the tough living conditions in the desert had caused him a lot of health issues; he died a few months after the boycott ended. The prophet was deeply saddened by the departure of his uncle who took care of him since he was child of 8 years old and the man who supported him and protected him from the attacks of the Quraysh so that he could deliver his message to the people. The situation got even worse, shortly after the death of Abu Talib, Khadijah passed away as well. Khadijah the first believer, the biggest supporter, the beloved wife and the mother of his children. These two incidents left Muhammad ﷺ in grief. This year was called the year of sorrow because the Prophet lost his greatest supporters: Abu Talib and Khadijah.
